

GAZMEND ZENELI

DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

CAREER OVERVIEW

Dr. Gazmend Zeneli is a
Lecturer in the Department of Tourism,
Hospitality and Recreation

FIELDS OF EXPERTISE

- Environment & Tourism

EMAIL

g.zeneli@umb.edu.al

BIO

Dr. Gazmend ZENELI studied at the Faculty of Forest Sciences of the Agricultural University of Tirana. He graduated as a "Forest Engineer" in 1995. He obtained his Master of Science degree in 1999 from the Mediterranean Agronomic Institute of Chania - Greece (MAICh), and after several years of work research at the Max Planck Institute, he took Doctor of Science (Doctor Rerum Naturalium) degree in 2006 from Friedrich Schiller University in Jena (Germany) in Chemical Ecology.

Dr. Zeneli also has a long academic experience as a lecturer in the subjects: "Research Methods and Academic Writing", "Design and Project Management" and "Urban and Real Estate Economics" for Bachelor students; and "Scientific Research Methods" for students of the Professional Master program.

He has a long professional experience and for a period of more than 20 years, has worked in important research centers or universities such as: Max Planck Institute for Chemical Ecology in Jena, Technical University of Dresden (Germany); South-Eastern University of Tetovo (Northern Macedonia); Leibniz Institute for Ecological Regional Development, Dresden (Germany); Mediterranean Agronomic Institute of Chania (Greece), etc. He has participated and directed many projects working closely with local or foreign partners. The results of scientific activity were published in some of the most popular journals in the field of environment